

The perfect fit

The optimum fit of a motorcycle suit is important in many respects. The garment must not appear constrictive or flutter extremely while riding. Trousers legs and sleeves should not slip up when worn. In order for the clothing to fit correctly, you should observe the following tables. All measurements in the tables are body measurements. Use a measuring tape and place it close to your body to determine your body measurements.

Since every person is of different stature, we try to help you determine your size with these tables.

- The body height is measured from the vertex to the sole. Without shoes, of course.
- You determine the suitable helmet size with the help of the head circumference. The head circumference is measured horizontally at the height of the forehead.
- The chest circumference is measured horizontally at the strongest point of the chest.
- The waist circumference is measured horizontally at the waist.
- The hip circumference is measured horizontally at the height of the strongest point of the hip.
- The stride length is measured from the crotch point to the sole of the foot.
- The side length is measured from the waist down to the sole of the foot.
- Arm length is measured from shoulder point to wrist.
- To determine glove sizes, place the measuring tape around your hand at the level of your knuckles and compare the measurement with the corresponding table.
